Additional Information

Scope/range related to performance criteria

The details in this field are explanatory statements of scope and/or examples of possible contexts in which the NOS may apply; they are not to be regarded as range statements required for achievement of the NOS.

The use of the terms 'child' or 'children' in this standard may refer to your work on an individual or group basis.

Note: Where a child or young person finds it difficult or impossible to express their own preferences and make decisions about their life, achievement of this standard may require the involvement of advocates to represent the views and best interests of the child or young person.

Where there are language differences within the work setting, achievement of this standard may require the involvement of interpreters or translation services.

Additional support needs refers to the particular additional support identified for a child or young person at any point in their life in order to remove barriers to their learning. Examples of when a child or young person has been identified as requiring additional support could include circumstances such as: autistic spectrum disorder, visual or sensory impairment, mental health difficulties, behavioural disorders such as ADHD, and dyslexia. (This is not an exhaustive list). Additional support needs can also refer to the support needs of a child or young person from a travelling family in order to access education, or the support needed by a child or young person whose first language is not English or Welsh.

Barriers to communication may include those relating to the physical environment; to interpersonal relationships and the emotional environment; to working practices; to the availability of resources including human or other aids or assistance; to the limitations of your own or other people's communication skills or attentiveness; to cultural contexts; to the specific circumstances of the child or young person, including disability, disadvantage, anxiety or distress

Children are those with whom you are working, except where otherwise stated

Equality of access is ensuring that discriminatory barriers to access are

Lead in the review of policies, procedures and practice for children with additional support needs removed and allowing for children's individual needs in terms of access to ICT e.g. taking action to ensure that girls participate equally with boys

Inclusion/inclusive A process of identifying, understanding and breaking down barriers to participation and belonging

Participation is the process by which children and young people influence decision making which brings about changes in them, others, their services and their communities

Scope/range related to knowledge and understanding

All knowledge statements must be applied in the context of this standard.

The details in this field are explanatory statements of scope and/or examples of possible contexts in which the NOS may apply; they are not to be regarded as range statements required for achievement of the NOS.

Assistive technology is technology that supports a child's ability to participate in the setting. It is a broad term that includes items ranging from e.g. a simple foam wedge for positioning to sophisticated power mobility devices

Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC) refers to any device, system or special method of communication that helps individuals with communication difficulties to communicate more easily and effectively: e.g. symbols, communication boards, voice output communication aids, sign language or facial expressions and gestures

Factors that may affect the health, wellbeing and development may include: family circumstances; folic acid during pregnancy; a healthy diet; positive mental health; physical health; strong social networks; supportive family structure; adverse circumstances or trauma before or during birth; autistic spectrum conditions; discrimination; domestic violence; foetal alcohol syndrome; harm or abuse; injury; learning disability; medical conditions (chronic or acute); physical disability; poverty; profound or complex needs; sensory needs; social deprivation; and substance misuse

Personalised learning must be interpreted within the requirements of your home country, it means learning that identifies what individuals already know, what they need to do to improve and how best they can do so; and uses effective pedagogical approaches to promote learning and dismantles barriers to learning whatever their causes and fosters the best possible conditions for learning.

Social and medical models of disability. The medical model reflects the traditional view of disability that it is something to be `cured', treating the child as a sick patient. The social model considers that it is society that needs to change and that disabled people have rights and choices

Transitions may include starting nursery for the first time, moving from nursery to school, moving home, the birth of a sibling, other changes affecting the child or young person
